BUILDING TOMORROW TODAY

IT WAS OBVIOUS FROM THE FIRST DAY, THAT CON-STRUCTION ON THE ACSC FACILITY WAS GOING TO HAVE A SIGNIFICANT IMPACT ON OUR SCHOOL YEAR. FOR TEN MONTHS, WE WATCHED BRICK MASONS, CARPENTERS, STEEL WORKERS, AND OTHER BUILDERS AS THEY SHAPED NEW ADDITIONS FOR BUILDING 1402. BUT WE ALSO KNOW THAT THE BUILDING PROCESS WAS NOT CONFINED TO THE CONSTRUCTION WORKERS. INSIDE, THE ACSC FACULTY AND STAFF USED IDEAS, KNOWLEDGE, AND UNDERSTANDING TO SHAPE THE MINDS OF ASPIRING MILITARY AND CIVILIAN LEADERS. IN BOTH IN-STANCES, THE BUILDING PROCESS INCREASED CAPABILITIES. WE THUS CONSIDER "BUILDING" THE THEME OF OUR EXPERIENCES AT ACSC AND THE LOGICAL THEME OF THIS YEARBOOK - BUILDING TOMORROW TODAY.

BUILDING
TOMORROW

. TODAY

BUILDING THE MIND

The primary purpose for attending ACSC in residence is to grow in knowledge and build mental capabilities for added responsibility. To this end, we exposed ourselves to a broad range of facts and principles, modified some of our opinions, gained some new insights, and learned that questions often outnumber answers in our search for understanding.

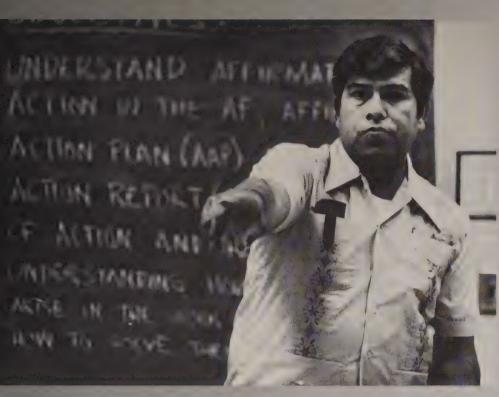

BUILDING THE BODY

This is our physical nature, the animal in us. But we mean more than pumping iron and running laps. We're talking about the student body, friends, associations, Wings, and Seminars. Perhaps the most memorable aspect of ten months at ACSC was the group, our comrades in the profession of arms.

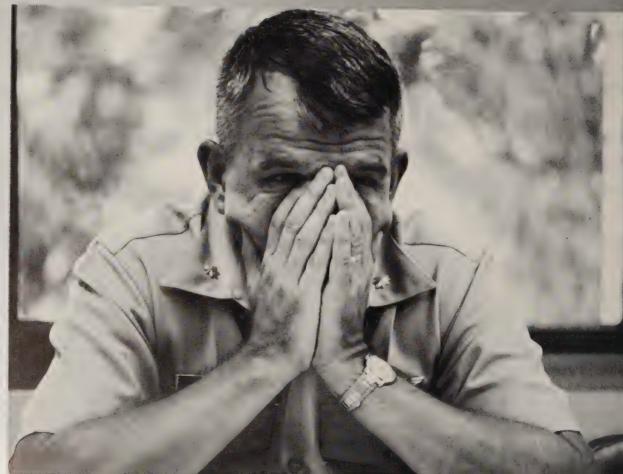

BUILDING SPIRIT

This is the unifying spirit of ACSC. It comes in many forms — a spirit of international cooperation, community spirit, patriotic spirit, espirit de corps, a competitive spirit. In whatever form, it is still the essence of our lives as professionals. It is the crucial, indefinable quality that leads all of us to a career of service to our country.

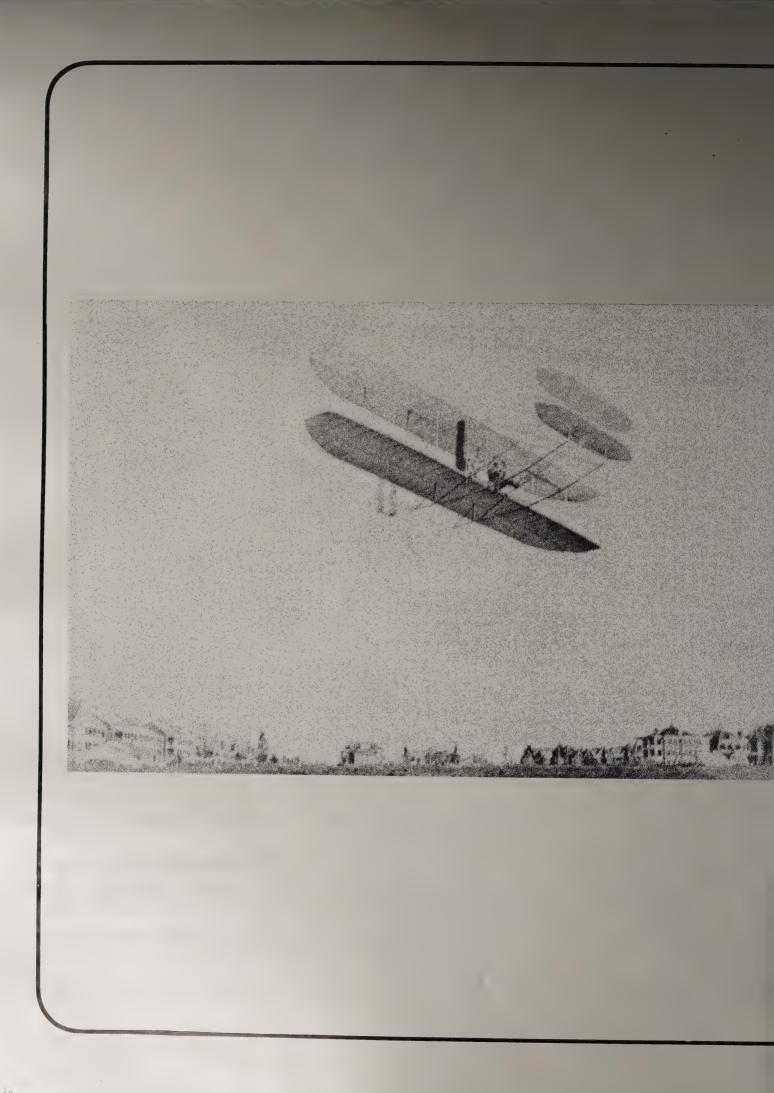

Building Upon Historic Foundations

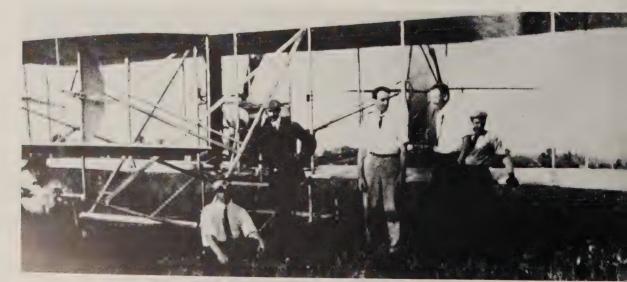

Maxwell: The Early Years

The process of "Building tomorrow ... today" began quesome time ago at Maxwell. First there was the Wright Brother Flying School established in 1910 with the help of five stude fliers and one mechanic. Operating from a single barn-line hanger, Orville set about building the foundations for air power with little more than a dream and an indomitable spirit adventure.

Orville Wright and his students

Air Corps Tactical School 1931-1946

For 50 years Maxwell has been instrumental in building professional military education, and the contributions to airpower have been enormous. The Air Corps Tactical School began the tradition in 1931 when it relocated to Maxwell from Langley Field, Virginia. Interestingly, ACTS students poured over the ideas of Douhet and Billy Mitchell just as we did recently.

A backward glance at some of the graduates and faculty of the early ACTS classes should give the class of '82 a good deal of hope for the future. The alumni rolls read like a Who's Who in Air Force history: George C. Kenney, "Possum" Hansell, Kenneth Walker, Ira Eaker, "Tooey" Spaatz, Claire Chennault, Curtis LeMay, Muir S. Fairchild and Hoyt S.

Vandenberg.

Air University 1946-Present

The demands of World War II forced the closure of the Air Corps Tactical School (ACTS) in 1941. However, its value was clear to many of the farsighted planners of the infant U.S. Air Force. One, Lt. Gen. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, then Assistant Chief of Air Staff (Operations and Training), sought to restore the opportunity for professional military education to the Army Air Force (AAF). In November 1945 he sent a proposal to a fellow ACTS graduate, Maj. Gen. C. C. Chauncey, Deputy Commanding General, AAF. Vandenberg suggested that the former Air Corps Tactical School be reinstituted as the Army Air Force School and that it be composed of what are now Air War College, Air Command and Staff College, and Squadron Officer School.

Approval of the proposal took but a week. There was a name change (to Air University) by the time the first Air War College and Air Command and Staff School classes began on 3 September 1946. During dedication ceremonies, the first AU commander, Maj. Gen. Muir S. Fairchild, told of Air University's direct descendency from ACTS and its legacy of tactics and techniques, doctrine and concepts. That intellectual, professional, and educational legacy continues in Air University today, building aerospace power for tomorrow . . . through the strength that knowledge brings.

Generals McDonald, Spaatz, Fairchild and Schlater at Air University Dedication, 3 September 1946.

Building the Mind

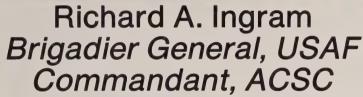

Charles G. Cleveland Lieutenant General, USAF Commander, Air University

"Given the visual and intellectual stimuli of your academic year at Air Command and Staff College, there hardly could be a more appropriate theme for your yearbook than 'Building Tomorrow . . . Today.' This was a year that marked the golden anniversary of professional military education at Maxwell Air Force Base, as well as a year of golden opportunity for you in terms of learning, plus new associations and friendships. Even as your school building was renovated and expanded, you built on and expanded your potential and talents. You contributed to the community and to each other, and I am confident that both the profession of arms and you as allies in it are much richer for the effort."

"About 2,300 years ago, Aristotle observed that 'the roots of education are bitter, but the fruit is sweet.' For the Air Command and Staff College Class of 1982, the usually bitter roots of education were made even more so by the sounds of construction crews at work, by announcements of last-minute schedule changes, and by the need to use 'borrowed' facilities.

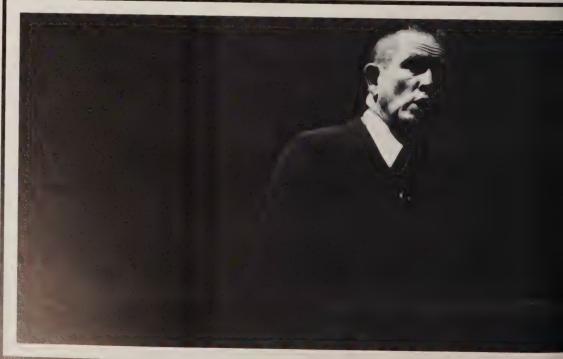

I hope this yearbook helps you recall not just construction, but rather the constructive parts of this academic year. After all, you have done much personal building this year; of mind, body, and spirit. You have both gained from and added to the body of professional knowledge. You were able to exchange views, sharpen your thinking, and forge lasting friendships, often on an international basis. You built today for a better tomorrow.

As you graduate and return to more typical pursuits, use what you have learned here, apply it, and continue to build on it. When you do so, you will find yourselves harvesting the rich, sweet fruits of this academic year, and you will see that the harvest will be an enduring one. Congratulations."

"The Answer Is Emerson."

We were told early in the program that the answer to most of our questions would prably be "Emerson," the 19th Century Transcendental poet and favorite of our Directo Curriculum. We lost some confidence in Colonel Garber, however, when the first test fat to include even one question about Emerson. Despite this initial disappointment, the cadopted the trivia-loving Colonel who substantially increased our knowledge of Pengland poets, Civil War logisticians (Nathan B. Forrest) and other little known facts.

As Director of Curriculum, Colonel Garber had the unenviable task of academic force-feeding 500 or so recalcitrant field graders who cared little for quantitative method papers on terrorism, speeches on Russian admirals, etc. Somehow Colonel Garber mall this a little easier to swallow. Perhaps Emerson was thinking of Colonel Gar (transcendentally speaking) when he said, "Our chief want in life is somebody who smake us do what we can."

Be that as it may, the following 17 pages take an "Emersonian" look at the 1982 AC class. Obviously we couldn't include everything, so we have focused on the more typ activities in . . .

To the ACSC Class of 1982:

Though not without its challenges and frustrations, producing the 1982 yearbook has been an interesting and rewarding undertaking. I am very pleased with the book, and I hope you enjoy reading it as much as we enjoyed putting it together.

Like any effort of this magnitude, there are many people responsible for the yearbook's completion and, I think, outstanding quality. In particular, the staff this year consisted of some unusually talented and motivated individuals.

If you review previous ACSC yearbooks and compare them to this year's effort, one conclusion is readily apparent to even the most uneducated eye — the quality of photography in this year's book is unparalleled. Credit for that goes to Dave Kraus who took most of the staff photos and printed well over 1500 photographs in his home darkroom.

Not so obvious, but every bit as essential to publishing the yearbook is the business manager's job. Jim Bell accomplished this portion of the project in an unprecedented fashion. The total operating budget for this year was almost $35,000 or $4000 more than the next most expensive book. To support this budget, Jim organized a sales campaign that netted 23% more advertising revenues than had ever

Bill Lowe, our layout editor, did a fantastic job also. On the average, each yearbook page requires between one and two hours to prepare for publication, and Bill was responsible for the vast majority of layout.

Taking care of everything else — the picture and yearbook sales, class directory and a countless number of other details — was Rea Tatus who accomplished this frequently frustrating task with thoroughness and aplomb. We couldn't have asked for a better yearbook advisor. Lt. Colonel Gary Breedlove neither harassed nor neglected us; his advice was valued and his candor appreciated.

After you review your individual seminar pages, you might take time to thank your seminar representatives for his or her work. Overall, I think the quality of the photography is very good and reflects a great deal of work by the first mix reps. A special thanks goes to Lee Post whose idea for the Colonel Garber picture inspired the "The Answer is Emerson" section.

Finally, I would like to extend my gratitude to the ladies who sold ads for the yearbook. Without their outstanding efforts we would have been forced to delete many of the special effects that help sot this yearbook apart from many others.

As yearbook editors we've looked at this year more critically than many of you have. We won't guarantee that you'll always agree with our perspective, but I do think that we've captured the essence of the ten months at ACSC. Years hence, we hope this yearbook will inspire fond memories of a portion of your career that was truly memorable in terms of lasting friendships, broaden intellectual awareness and some pretty good times generally.

Join the leader...

Magnavox, the people who are revolutionizing the navigation and communication systems of the world!

Today, Magnavox Advanced Products and Systems Company is playing a key role in the most revolutionary advances in the history of navigation and communications systems

This represents an enormous advance for both military and commercial positioning world wide. It is made possible by the successful merging of satellite based navigation and communication technologies, fields in which Magnavox exercises undisputed leadership!

These technologies are derived from the three product directorates at Magnavox Advanced Products and Systems Company

Magnavox Advanced Products and Systems Company is designing, developing and manufacturing, marketing and supporting some of the most sophisticated communications systems ever conceived

Magnavox's communications systems apply advanced digital communications techniques including pseudo noise and spread spectrum anti-jam modulation to communications systems: both tactical and strategic. The most recent developments in this area have been the AN/GXG-7A. The AN/CSC-28 and the OM-55

Marine Systems and Products:

This commercial area encompasses the development production, sale and support of marine electronic products and systems to commercial and government interests. Our continuing research and development programs are producing the most sophisticated navigation and communication systems in the world

Because of our commercial and industrial orientation development is not controlled by large government contracts. Our engineers and programmers work in small cohesive units which have team responsibility for new product design through successful production

Global Positioning Systems and Products:

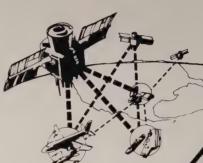

When the complete GPS system is fully operational, 24 NAVSTAR satellites will continuously circle the earth, transmitting time and three dimensional position data to the entire globe

Magnavox Advanced Products and Systems Company is designing and building a variety of user equipments for navigational use by aircraft, ships, land vehicles and spacecraft. These new designs will be the first generation of a military and commercial product line that will revolutionize position location into the next century.

Your Future at Magnavox:

If you are seeking a future where there is diversity of technological challenges, complete involvement with projects from concept through production, a strong management team career stability and a stimulating work environment conducive to your professional growth, this is your opportunity to join a very successful electronics team

We are an equal opportunity employer

Know-how (no'hou') n: the expertise that enables a person or group to set goals and achieve them in an innovative way.

Rockwell International know-how is working to meet many of the world's unprecedented challenges. We're a $7 billion worldwide, multi-industry company working at the leading edge of a wide range of technologies in four principal businesses:

- Automotive
- Aerospace
- Electronics
- General Industries

To manage these diverse technologies, we've put the right engineering and manufacturing teams together with the right management to create systems as advanced as the technologies themselves. That, too, is know-how from Rockwell International.

GO INTO YOUR KIDS' CLOSET AND CLEAN UP.

We think there's a great market in Montgomery for like-new children's clothes, toys, and furniture.

If you have some kids' clothes that are in great shape—we'll buy them. Boys' or girls' from Size 5 on up.

And if you have some nice kids' furniture or toys in the attic, give us a call. If they are in perfect condition, we'll pay you cash on the spot.

You'll clean up—in more ways than one.

Hours Mon.-Sat. 9:30-5:00 PM We Buy by Appointment Only Tues. and Thurs.

General Electric Tactical Data Systems ... The Right Choice for All the Right Reasons.

The Right System Configuration

As systems integrators, and not general purpose computer manufacturers. GE data systems specialists are able to maintain complete objectivity in the selection of hardware and software to meet DOD mission requirements. Our system designs, based on a thorough evaluation of current-production, commercially available ADPE, result from performance tests using simulation tools developed by GI for that specific purpose, live benchmark demonstrations, and rigorous environmental testing

Our experience in software development has grown from the exacting data processing requirements of satellite and space-related applications, extending to command and control systems for military und civil projects. Worldwide logistics, computerized maintainability and reliability management, and large-scale data base operations are current GE-system programs. Over 40% of our technical people contribute to deliverable software projects.

PERSCO (PERsonnel Support for Contingency Operation), a self-propelled, automated personnel records management system on wheels, was designed and built by GE for the Air Force Each unit's data base handles up to 36,000 personnel records. Like DAS3, PERSCO uses commercially available hardware, ruggedized for difficult operational environments.

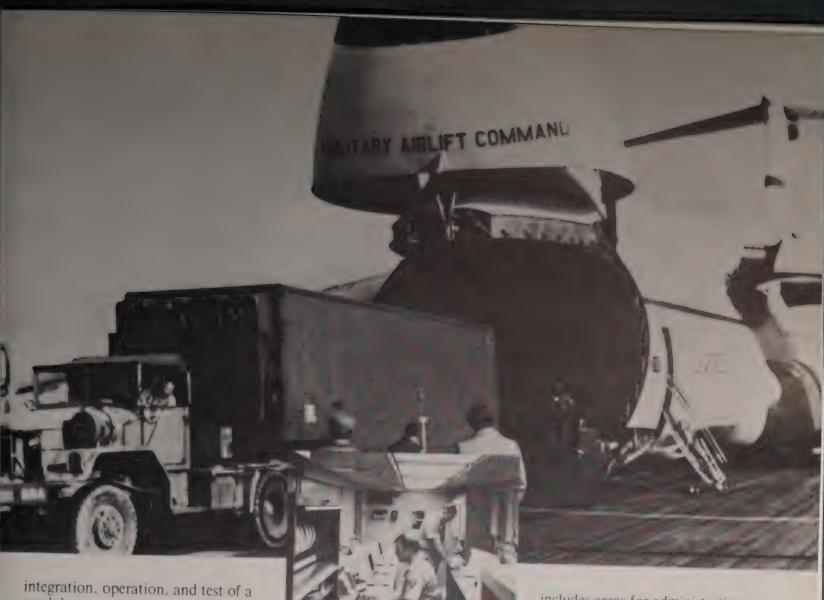

GE's 122,000 square-foot facility in Valley Forge, PA, is dedicated to the design, engineering, manufacturing, and testing of integrated mobile data systems for the military. Automated design tools are used extensively for system engineering, including state-of-the-art Computer Aided Design techniques employing dynamic simulation, emulation, and real-time monitoring.

The Right Life Cycle Cost Concept

When you sign on with GE, you're not signing a blank check. GE data systems managers are dedicated to long-term on-time and on-budget performance — with no surprises along the way. The considerable technical and financial resources of the General Electric organization are your assurance of continued dedication to program objectives, ten days — or ten years — into the life cycle of the project.

The Right Experience

In hands-on know-how in design and manufacture of transportable, modular computer systems, GE is an industry leader. Our record, proven by successful tactical and non-tactical projects for all three Services, is prime evidence. Current projects include DAS3, a multi-year program for low-cost, mobile logistical computer systems for the U.S. Army, and PERSCO, a self-propelled data management system on wheels, developed for the Air Force. We recently completed a demanding benchmark effort in design integration, operation, and test of a modular system to meet the Navy's requirement for a Shipboard Nontactical ADP Program (SNAP).

GE's approach provides total life cycle coverage of systems developed for special requirements. We provide complete systems design, manufacturing, training, documentation, supply system setup and operations, field support and total Integrated Logistics System capability for provisioning. The systems which we provide range from single processor systems in fixed or mobile facilities to large scale multi-processor systems networked to provide a distributed processing capability to support a variety of military applications.

The equipment, integrated at GE's 122,000 square-foot Tactical Data Systems facility in Valley Forge, PA, is environmentalized to withstand the severe field conditions anticipated during operational use. The plant

GE provides the Army with low-cost, reliable mobile data processing facilities for its Decentralized Automated Service Support System (DAS3) program DAS3 utilizes standard commercial computers and programming, ruggedized and environmentalized to meet military needs for transportability. DAS3 units are operated and maintained by Army field personnel with minimal training.

DAS3 units being tested for operation in a broad range of hostile environments. Production systems are being used currently at both the Division and not Division levels by the Army's tactical command because Korea, and the United States includes areas for administration, engineering, design, fabrication, and component and system testing. It also supports the depot-level repair capability, and is the focal point for supply operations. Centralization in this dedicated facility maximizes program integration and control

The Right Attitude

GE program managers are career managers, with a long-term commitment to national defense objectives. Their dedication starts with the analysis of requirements and continues all the way through production, fielding, and support of the system. At each stage, general management commitment is assured through high visibility and meticulous monitoring of all significant program milestones and challenges

Less the right solution to the tactical data systems challenge choose the right reasons

There's no place like home wherever that is).

Moving is a basic part of the military lifestyle. A lifestyle that's as different as a salute is from a handshake. A pattern of settling, uprooting, settling, uprooting. It continues beyond active duty and holds true for separated and retired officers as well.

Percentage of moves

We know. because we've been insuring only officers and their families since 1922. And research said that thousands of you move each year (75% of these moves are out of state or country). Knowing facts like this means we can serve you best because we know you better.

We know cadets and some active duty officers tend to rent. So we offer policies for personal liability and household goods insurance. Coverages that supply protection anywhere in the world.

On the other hand, almost half the active duty officers we insure own their homes. So we provide homeowners insurance. Then go a couple of steps farther: In most states, we can automatically update your dwelling coverage by the same percentage that replacement costs increase in your area.

We also offer a 10% discount on premiums for homes that are less than five years old.

We even make determining your home's replacement cost easy with a special Dwelling Evaluation Formula.

USAA is equally protective if you're the landlord. Our experience shows that our moving members often keep their homes as investments and rent them out. Our policies protect both the dwelling and its furnishings against fire, vandalism and other destructive forces.

Of course, a wide range of coverages isn't all. Our unique style of service is also designed for the mobile person. For claims, policies or straight talk, we're never more than a toll-free phone call away anywhere in the continental United States. Overseas, we have offices in England and Germany, with claims services in all parts of the world

So wherever you call home. call USAA. We offer: competitive prices, no-interest monthly payment plans, unparalleled claims service, and auto policy dividends. (Although not guaranteed. they have been paid in most states every year since 1924.) When it comes to claims service, our members put us on top. And today, 9 out of 10 active duty officers do business with us.

It's all part of serving you best because we know you better. Maybe that's why military officers who are constantly coming and going, stay with USAA.

For more information on insurance that fits your lifestyle, write

> USAA, San Antonio, Texas 78288. Or call toll-free: 1-800-531-8 +vour area code. In Texas, 1-800-292-8 + vourarea code. For non-members call 1-800-531-8080. In Texas 1-800-292-8080.

Officers of the U.S. Services may establish membership in USAA by taking out a policy while on active duty, while members of the Reserve or National Guard, or when a Retired Officer (with or without retire pay). OCS/OTS/Advanced ROTC also eligible.

Serving you best, because we know you better:
